Colors

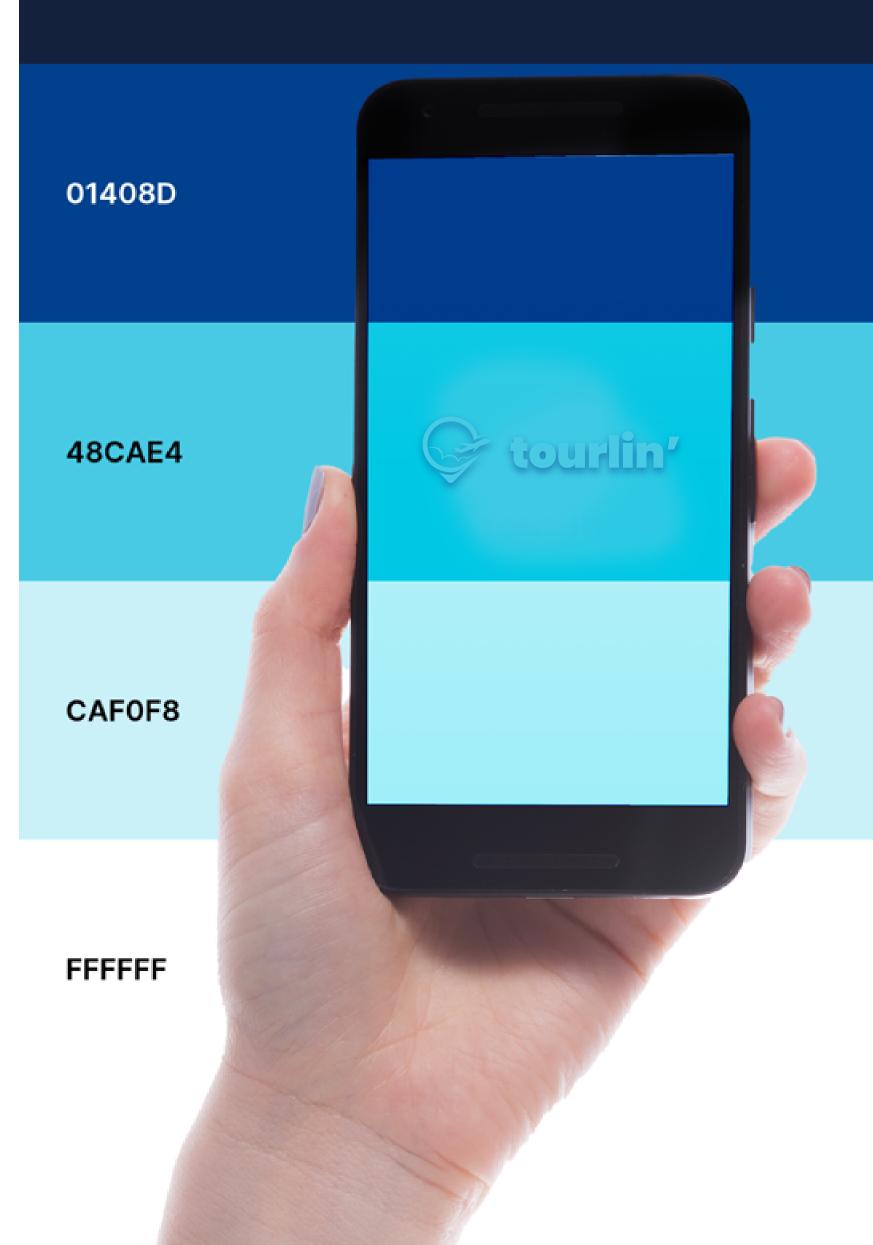

Blue - the color of travel.

While a lot of it is personal preference, of course, there is some science behind why you're clicking on certain things and not others. Color, as it turns out, is a huge indicator for the brain. It can be a cerulean ocean scene, a turquoise pool, or the deeper blue of Santorini's famous rooftops; it's going to be a hit. But it's not just me who notices this kind of thing — it's actually a tried-and-true scientific fact that people are really, really into the color blue.

According to Color Psychology, blue suggests a feeling of peace and calm. It's believed that the hue can promote mental clarity and stimulate the thought process. Just these attributes alone explain the staying power this hue has when it comes to social media images.

Blue is the only color considered equally loved by women and men.
